The traditional Chinese medicine including acupuncture-therapy, which has a long history, is well known all over the world. For many centuries it has been of benefit to people by adapting acupuncture treatment in meridian points of person's body. Specialists in the traditional medicines are presently drawing much more attention to the acupuncture therapy.

Based on this method of treatment, I have found from my own experience of using the newly invented equipment, ACULIFE MAGNETIC WAVE THERAPIST, to be a user-friendly combination of modern technology and convenience in the form of an easy-to-use, hand-help device. It is an instrument that will greatly enhance the flexibility of self-diagnosis and self-therapy. This mobility makes it handy to have in the home, place of work or even bring along on travels. Its compact size makes it easy to store away.

I am happy that ACULIFE MAGNETIC WAVE THERAPIST, invented by Mr. Xia Lei and Mr. Chiang Chih Cheng, is now available in the market. After using it regularly following instruction, I have found relief and improvement in the affected part of my body. ACULIFE is used by applying it to the meridian points on the hand and ear at the same time. This traditional method of Chinese healing by applying treatment to meridian points in acupuncture can be effectively practiced and brings a lot of good to people. It has been found to have beneficial effect for some illness and may be used as a preventive measure against some complaints.

I am glad to recommend ACULIFE for your well-being and wish you great benefits from practicing good habits for a healthy life.
